

The Junior Researcher Association addresses the issues concerning the temporary academic staff at Aarhus University. Overall, we aim to improve the working conditions for junior researchers and work closely with the Aarhus University leadership and administration to achieve the best possible environment, making Aarhus University a more attractive place for postdoctoral training.

We focus on:

- Discussing and improving working conditions for junior researchers
- Representing junior researchers from all faculties, schools, and departments of Aarhus University in political boards
- Facilitating communication and networking between junior researchers within all faculties, schools, and departments of Aarhus University
- Creating an intellectual framework (e.g., interdisciplinary collaboration) for junior researchers at Aarhus University.

Use the QR code to go to our website. Also, follow us on social media....

Who is a Junior Researcher at AU?

A Junior Researcher at AU is an individual who has completed a doctoral degree (or at least submitted a Ph.D. thesis to the graduate school) and holds a fixed-term position at AU.

AU JRA: Because you are not alone!!!